OPEN QUESTIONS

As you consider these questions, how might you change them to be even more effective for the content and group you are working with?

- How does this compare to your experience?
- In what ways might this be useful to (for) you?
- When this has worked well for you, what was going on that made it work?
- What are some examples of this in your life? What differences (or similarities) do you see between them and our work here?
- What was the most valuable part of this...?
- What surprised you about...? Why do you think this is so?
- What would you do if...?
- How could you improve this situation?
- What do you need to ask to better understand?
- In your experience, why does this happen?
- What happens when...?
- What are your questions?
- What do you make of...?
- In what ways can you...?
- How does this compare to your experience?
- In what ways might this be useful to (for) you?
- When this has worked well for you, what was going on that made it work?
- What are some examples of this in your life? What differences (or similarities) do you see between them and our work here?
- What was the most valuable part of this...?