

Conference Example: International Budget Partnership (IBP) <http://www.internationalbudget.org>

Below are two pages from the IBP meeting webpage. Notice how participants can check out who is coming (with a photo and bio for each person), information about the partners and networking groups, critical resources and documents, the meeting agenda, and a pre-event discussion forum. Also everything is in the two languages that will be used at the event: English and French. All this helps to start building relevance, safety, respect and inclusion long before the event starts—awesome!

IBP Partners Meeting 2016: Dialogue and Discovery

13 - 15 June | Barcelona

Civil society budget groups value the opportunity to learn from each other. Their work on public budgets presents them with particular challenges and draws on a demanding range of knowledge and skills. It is technically difficult work and not widely understood, including by other civil society groups. Meeting, getting to know, and learning from counterparts in other countries thus provide groups with a rare opportunity to expand their specialized expertise, and to draw encouragement and inspiration from others who understand the challenges inherent in the work.

The June 2016 IBP Partners Meeting - "Dialogue and Discovery" - is based on this understanding. It is intended to provide an opportunity for partners to meet, learn from each other, and think together about their achievements and the challenges they face undertaking analysis and advocacy on public budgets.

As we move towards re-visioning and re-energizing IBP's role in supporting the continued development of budget work internationally, we are taking this opportunity - drawing on feedback from partners - to formalize a network around learning. IBP hopes that the network can enable an active and collaborative community where CSOs can deepen their understanding of the role that public budgets play in issues of social justice and accountability, as well as develop stronger capabilities for doing innovative and effective budget work. The meeting will therefore help IBP and its partners think together about the design, processes and priorities necessary to enable such a network to move forward.
